2017 Newsletter

Happy Holidays! 2017 was a year of many firsts for C. Eule Dance “West.” In April, we had our first performance in San Diego as we were invited to perform on a beautiful outdoor stage as part of Dance on the Edge in ARTWALK San Diego. In May, we held our first West Coast Benefit Party at Ballet Bodies studio in West Hollywood. The event was complete with refreshments donated by local restaurants, fabulous auction items, sneak previews and site-specific performances by C. Eule Dance. We stopped traffic as drivers and passersby stopped to peer in through the window at the performance.

In June, we held our first full evening Season in LA at the Ivy Substation. We premiered our piece “Fluid Memories” in response to California’s drought, revived many C. Eule Dance favorites, and presented two works of guest choreography: one by Stefan Wenta; and the other by Dominique McDougal and Yuri Zhukov. This performance was partly funded by our first West Coast Grant from the City of Culver City Performing Arts Grant, and included guest performances by the city’s local high school dance company. We held three shows, including a family matinee which was followed by an interactive workshop where the dancers and I taught the audience a section of one of the pieces. We had great responses from the audience including:

“I was mesmerized by the sheer variety of dance performances in Fluid Memories. “Each piece was a unique work of art; a remarkable blend of diverse influences and inspirations, I enjoyed every molecule of it”: “My kids were transfixed!... I literally had goose bumps!”

The Ivy Substation was so impressed with our performance that they invited us to be produced by them in their 2018 Season. In the New Year, I plan on creating new work and continuing my workshops and outreach with local communities.

Please stay tuned for performance dates in 2018, and we hope to see you there! Thank you for your support of C. Eule Dance. Any donations you would like to make go towards creating new work in 2018 and our community outreach efforts.

Yours truly,
